

Abstract

An interactive applet for testing a user in a web-based learning environment. The interactive applet is embedded in a course page of a web-based curriculum. The applet provides a set of images to a user regarding the information presented in the course and instructs the user to match each image with a corresponding description in a set of descriptions. The applet provides feedback to the user, and allows the user to revise an incorrect answer.